Homosexualization of America (part 2) By Sam Dilbeck

(This is the second part of this article. The first part appeared in last week’s bulletin. You can request a copy of the first part if you have not read it.)

Troy Has Fallen

“The visual media, film and television, are plainly the most powerful image-makers in Western civilization. The average American household watches over seven hours of TV daily. Those hours open up a gateway into the private world of straights, through which a Trojan horse might be passed.” The normalization of the homosexual lifestyle can be seen in every arena of popular culture—music, movies, books, magazines, and the internet. However, television has become and window into our cultural soul. Their agenda has changed the face of television.

As Kirk and Madsen predicted, their strategy has entered mainstream America like a Trojan horse and eroded her moral sensibilities. Today, anyone who opposes same-sex activity is labeled “homophobic” and vilified. Few people possess the courage to stand against their agenda—not in politics, not in the media, and not in the culture.

Even among Christians, gayness is growing more acceptable. The liberal theology of postmodernism calls into question the absolute condemnation of homosexuality. Spencer Burke, a postmodern theologian, laments the inability to question biblical teaching, “Want to earn a place on the...[Christian] black list? Admit your uncertainty about homosexuality as a biblically condemned sin.” In May 2020, the United Methodist Church will vote on a measure to divide the denomination over the issue of gay marriage and gay clergy members. Religious leaders attempting to adapt the church to modern culture are forced to accept the aberrant behavior as normal. Truly, Troy has fallen, but what can be made of its ruins?

Sifting Through the Rubble

Pandora's box has been opened and will probably never be closed on the homosexual agenda. Like adultery, fornication, divorce, drunkenness, and a host of other sins, homosexuality has come out of the closet and become a visible part of a decadent society. What can Christians do?

We must be Christians. The Christian response to sin has been the same since the cross. We cannot give people a reason to vilify us through rude and abusive behavior towards practicing gays (1 Pet. 3:16). We must become friends to the sinners like Jesus did (Matt. 11:19). We cannot ignore them or treat them as repulsive. Instead we must confront their sin with the compassion of Christ. Repentance is vital to their salvation, and we must do what we can to help them leave the clutches of sin and cleave to the Savior (Jas. 5:20).

We must teach people about sin, not just homosexuality, but all sin (Rom. 6:23). We must be passionate about denouncing sin and proclaiming the word of God "for it is the power of God for salvation to everyone who believes." We must teach our children about sin and its destructive nature and seek ways to protect them from its grip. But, at the same time we must show them how to be merciful, patient, and forgiving. We cannot instill the sins of hatred and prejudice in our children.

Like any sin, homosexuality affects our culture, just as it affected the culture of the first century. While the mechanism of its influence has changed, its results have not. Today, the world still needs Jesus. Christians are the culture's conscience, and must stand opposed to sin while reaching out with the power of grace. May we have the strength to confront the sin, compassion to accept the sinner, and the wisdom to convert their souls.
